

As one who has had a love hate relationship with the institutional church and those who seek to perpetuate it, I resonate with Tamara because I've often thought there has to be more to faith than "going to church."

Unboxing God:Reclaiming Faith in a Post-Church Culture is a fascinating look into what Tamara Buchan calls "the transition between the Church season and the Kingdom Age. Tamara shares her extremely intimate journey with Jesus through this transition which takes her beyond Jesus as Savior and Lord to Jesus as King.

As you read Unboxing God you will be faced with what could be a life altering question: "Does Tamara have a fascinating imagination or does she have a remarkably intimate relationship with the "King of the Universe?"
